

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A valve comprises a cylindrical body made of a metal material, a screw section formed on a first attachment hole in the body, a first seal member provided on an upper surface of the body, a third seal member attached to an upper surface of the first attachment hole, a valve plug arranged in a second attachment hole for being seated on a valve seat, a flange section curved outwardly from an outer circumferential surface of the body, and a spring interposed between the valve plug and a spring-receiving member provided in the second attachment hole.